John Singer Sargent, noted American painter, who is in this country from London, England, for the purpose of placing in position the mural paintings he has been at work on for years in the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston, was a visitor to Gloucester Thursday. He came to Gloucester expressly to visit the old home of his ancestors, Winthrop and Epes Sargent. The house is known as the old Revolutionary House on Middle past. [illegible] has been no noticable difference in life at the Griswold where the guests seem to come for outdoor life that the beach and the golf links afford.

Yachting is still popular at Eastern Point. Just off the Griswold lies the Niagara, Howard Gould's yacht, which is being overhauled by the Government preparatory to handing it over to its owner.

ays being considered the finest in the ountry of its kind. The early Sargents unded the Universalist Independent hirstian Society, the first Universalist hurch in America being located in oucester near the old house. The ciety is now the owner of the Sargent use and it is being restored. The tist was accompanied to Gloucester by of. Charles Sprague Sargent of Harrd University, an acknowledged au-ority on horticulture, whose ancestors re also the Sargents of Gloucester. J.
Sargent brought with him a portrait Prof. Sargent and it will be placed
